What are the signs that someone is becoming radicalised?

Think, pair, share

If someone is at risk of being radicalised they might:

- Talk positively about dangerous groups or people who promote hate, or make it seem like these groups are OK
- Spend time with people or on websites that promote violence, hate, racism, homophobia or islamophobia
- May become secretive and not want to talk to anyone about where they spend time or what they're doing online
- Refuse to talk to people from a certain country or who have a different sexuality or belief
- Be rude, aggressive or violent towards a particular group of people, for example, Jewish, Muslim or gay people or someone who supports a certain political party.

Some things that happen in the world can make us scared, confused, and unsafe, or like we don't have any control.

However you feel, it can really help to share your feelings and get support.

Don't worry by yourself:

- You can talk to your Tutor or Head of Year.

If you have a concern about the safety of another pupil, don't keep it to yourself. Please speak to Mr Quaintance, [redacted], Mrs Holroyd or Mrs Chapple our Safeguarding Officers.

Mr Quaintance's office is in the Learning Support Corridor opposite the student toilets.

Mrs Holroyd can be found in the Learning Support Office.

Mrs Birkbeck
